Confirmation of Request

Thank you for your request to join (@CO_NAME).

In order to confirm your application and link to your federated identity, please click the link below and follow the directions. Your home institution may prompt you to login as part of this process.

(⟩INVITE_URL)

- Please do not share this URL with anyone else, as it is intended only for you. Also, please note that this invitation expires after 24 hours, and the link will not function after that time. If you are unable to attend to this before then, please contact support@lists.cohortium.internet2.edu to receive a new invitation.

Email to Cohortium

As we have mentioned in the past, the Cohortium wiki space is moving to a CoCoA platform that will enable us to administer our Confluence wiki groups and Sympa electronic mail lists in one place, rather than defining them separately in both Confluence and Sympa. In the future, it will also enable federated group scheduling and other applications, again managed from a single interface. After the migration, the URL for the Cohortium wiki space will be:

<URL>

Further information about CoCoA is available on the wiki at <https://spaces.at.internet2.edu/x/MgCRAg> .

In order to use the new CoCoA platform, you will need to have your home institution's identity management group release a small set of identity attributes to the new platform. If your institution supports InCommon's Research & Scholarship Service Provider Category (a list is available at <https://incommon.org/federation/info/all-sp-categories.html>), then this has already been done. If not, see <https://spaces.at.internet2.edu/x/MgCRAg> for what to ask of your identity management group. If your institution is not an InCommon member, or if attribute release cannot be arranged quickly enough, you can utilize a Google identity via the Internet2 Google Gateway run by InCommon Operations.

Once your attributes are being released, register for the CoCoA platform by browsing to <URL>. You will then receive electronic mail describing how to confirm your registration.

Thank you.
